COUNCIL FAILS TO GET ORDINANCE ON SOLICITING BAN

Action Postponed Until June Meeting; Anxious To Get Rules Against "Runners."

Council transacted considerable routine business at the monthly May meeting, Friday evening, but the item of major interest, scheduled to have been disposed of, was touched on only lightly.

The ordinance, regulating soliciting for hotels, boarding and lodging houses, restaurants and garages, sent back to the solicitor at the April meeting for modification of its blanket provisions, was to have been presented Friday evening, but Attorney J. Donald Swope did not show up at the meeting, so that final action had to be postponed until the June meeting.

Would Regulate Runners

As originally drafted, the ordinance would have prohibited soliciting anywhere in the borough, but councilmen pointed out that inasmuch as the practice is more pronounced in Centre Square and on the four main streets, within two blocks of the oval, the ordinance should be changed accordingly.

Councilmen also were anxious to have incorporated in the ordinance a provision regulating "runners" for the various services beyond the two-block limit.

Edward L. Weikert, Jr., appeared before council, asking permission to move a fire plug in front of the Lincoln Way theatre property, York street, which he will convert into a garage and service station, to the east line of his property. The matter was placed in the hands of the property committee with power to act.

Wayne Keet, proprietor of Keet's drug store, Chambersburg street, also asked for the removal of a fire plug in front of his property. Council will take final action at the June meeting after securing the recommendations of the fire company and fire marshal.

Donates Alley to Town

As soon as the ordinance is ready for presentation, President Stock said he would call a special meeting to consider its passage. The adjourned meeting is expected to be called next week.

After Robert E. Tipton, a property owner on East Middle street, appeared before council with a proposition to give the borough a strip of land in an alley south of East Middle street, running from South Stratton street to East Confederate avenue, council voted to adopt an 18-foot building line through the alley and ordain that portion of the alley from a government alley to East Confederate avenue. A strip of land in this section will be deeded to the borough, without cost, by Mr. Tipton.

At present the alley has more than a dozen widths in its 564 feet, varying from 12 to 18 feet, and reaching 25 feet at places.

Forbidden to Use Explosives

Because he has been "exceedingly careless," according to councilmen, with the use of dynamite within the borough limits, Thad Fleming will be notified not to use the explosive again. The action was taken after it (Continued on Second Page)

Splendor of Apple Blossoms Draws Many Tourists to County

Blooms At Peak Now And Beautiful Sight Is Promised Visitors To Orchard Section; Several Routes Suggested For Persons Desiring To See Best.

With fair weather predicted for the week-end, Adams county's myriads of apple blossoms, now at the height of their blooming period, will be nature's magnet to attract thousands of persons into the fruit belt Sunday.

Many persons visited the fruit section today, returning with wonderful word-picture descriptions of the beauty of the thousands of trees in full bloom.

"But Sunday's crowd of motorists is expected to exceed any influx Adams county has witnessed in recent years. Word has gone out to towns and cities within a radius of 160 miles of Gettysburg inviting residents there to come to Adams county over the week-end to see what next fall will be in the "apple bin" of Pennsylvania.

They're Pretty

From certain elevated places near Biglerville, Bendersville, Cashtown, Flora Dale and elsewhere, the several hundred thousand apple trees spread out before the beholder as vistas of unvaried pink and white loveliness, impossible to be surpassed anywhere.

All the pleasure of driving in and out through the orchards is not visual, however, for the delicate, exotic fragrance the blossoms exude is one which will linger long in memory, serves as a tonic to refresh tired minds and bodies and renews mankind's faith and belief in a kind and beneficent providence.

Hard surface roads wind in and out through many of the larger orchards of upper Adams county, and with fair weather prevailing even the byroads will offer a pleasant welcome to motorists who otherwise might not venture from the main highways.

Good Route

There are many side jaunts throughout the county which visitors may take if they wish to get exceptional views of the large orchards, arrayed in their finest attire. The Lincoln Highway may be left at Riddlemoser's farm, near McKnightstown, for a trip passed Sheely's round barn, the only one of its kind in Adams county, and thence on to Arendtsville, Biglerville and Bendersville.

A few of the less frequently visited orchards are those along the so-called "Potato Road" which leads from Bendersville to Arendtsville.

Gettysburg and Adams county stand ready to help visitors in any way possible so that their week-end jaunt into this miniature performed Paradise may be pleasant and profitable. Hotels, restaurants and garages will willingly furnish any touring information to persons desiring to tour the fruit belt.

2 YOUTHS HELD ON CHARGES OF ROBBING GARAGE

Loot Said To Have Been Found In Back Of Automobile Owned By One.

Arrested early this morning on open charges of suspicion of burglary and robbery, Joseph Brown, 19, and Melvin Bell, 18, both of Reading township, were committed to the Adams county jail.

The two youths were to be formally arraigned later in the day on charges growing out of thefts of merchandise and automobile accessories at Lerew's garage, East Berlin, late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

The alleged loot was found in a false back in the tonneau of Brown's machine which he had taken to Mummet's garage, East Berlin, for repairs, and state and county police were at once notified. Automobile tire tubes, cigarettes, candy and other merchandise were found in the false back.

Say Brown Confessed

The call for state and county police was received here at 11 o'clock, Friday night. Corporal Arthur Snyder, Trooper C. B. Robenolt and Detective Charles Wilson responded to the call, and shortly after midnight arrested Brown at his home.

He is alleged to have confessed to the robbery and to have implicated Bell in his statement. Bell was then taken into custody at his home, the officers returning to Gettysburg with their prisoners at 3 o'clock this morning.

A window at Lerew's garage was forced to gain entrance into the place. In order to break into the storeroom of the garage, the intruders broke through a partition of wallboard.

BELL TAKES LEAD IN TROPHY SHOOT

Gettysburg Gun Club Team Makes Good Scores in Match at Hebbville.

Threatening weather kept down the attendance at the registered shoot of the Hebbville gun club Friday, but what the crowd lacked in numbers was made up in high scores, some of the best shooting of the year being on exhibition. The Gettysburg club squad, made up of Bell, Edell, Miller, Mittinger and Stallsmith, succeeded in bagging three high gun trophies in addition to leading the field of team shooters by a wide margin. Bob Bell had one of his good days and led the field with his score of ninety-nine, the one target marked "lost" being very questionable, many of the spectators declaring that the referee had erred. Edell shot a good race to follow with a ninety-six, Miller turned in ninety-four, with Mittinger and Stallsmith following along with ninety-two and eighty-eight, respectively. Robert Lee of the Hebbville club gave Bell a race for high gun honors, winding up with ninety-seven.

The handicap event, consisting of fifty targets at distances of from 17 to 22 yards, developed some fine sport, the winners being Lee from 22 yards with a score of forty-seven, Miller from 19 with forty-eight, and Bosley from 17 with another forty-eight. Miller's shooting in the second frame of the handicap race was the feature of the afternoon, scoring 25 clean breaks from his yardage mark.

The local club will attend the final inter-city shoot between Washington and Baltimore as guests of the former next Saturday, when final arrangements will be made for the newly formed league, the first event of which is scheduled for this place early in September. The club will hold the second of its program of trophy practice shoots next Wednesday afternoon, with solid gold trophies for the lucky entries.

CREST OF FLOOD NEARLY PASSED

330,000 Refugees Now North of Red and Old Rivers, Hoover Estimates.

New Orleans, May 7.—(AP)—With 330,000 persons north of the Red and the Old rivers already either driven from their homes or compelled to seek refuge in upper floors or tops of dwellings, the beginning of the end of the greatest flood in the history of the Mississippi was felt below the mouths of these rivers today.

Climbing gauges as the muddy current flowed relentlessly toward levee tops brought renewed efforts from thousands of levee workers who have been laboring three weeks to rear the embankments to a sufficient height to withstand the predicted crest.

The gauge at New Orleans remained stationary but between the city and the mouth of the Red river consistent rises were shown indicating that the waters which have been running over the lowlands were returning to the main stream.

An area of 11,000 square miles of territory already has been flooded, driving 180,000 persons from their homes and 150,000 more to refuge on upper floors, Secretary Hoover estimated today.

Refugees continue to stream into concentration camps from the flood district of northeastern Louisiana while a rescue fleet today combed the Black river district.

The crest of the flood was just passing Vicksburg and had 400 miles to go before exhausting its powers of destruction. Mr. Hoover again today appealed for every penny of the Red Cross quota and as much more as the American people can give.

'QUAKE IS FELT AROUND MEMPHIS

Towns Adjacent to Flood Area Feel Light Shocks This Morning.

Memphis, May 7.—(AP)—Earth tremors were felt early today in Memphis and a dozen or more towns within a radius of 100 miles north and west of this city. Reports received here indicated that the tremor was slight. No damage was reported.

The first shock was felt at 2:35 o'clock and another a few moments later. Covington, Tennessee, and Caruthersville, Missouri, were the more distant points from Memphis reporting having been shaken.

Several of the towns reported to have felt the shocks are adjacent to the area affected by the Mississippi river flood. Memphis and Caruthersville are on the river and several other towns which felt the shock although unaffected by the overflow are near the flooded area.

None of the inundated towns experienced the tremor.

More than 200 persons were packed into the hall Friday evening. Reports of the show were to the effect that it was uproariously funny.

GIRL, 13, INHERITS MILLION ESTATE

Bequeathed Huge Sum by Physician Who Wanted To Adopt Her.

Salisbury, Md. May 7.—A 13-year-old girl whom he had unsuccessfully sought to adopt legally will receive nearly $1,000,000 under the will of Edward E. Tull, who died at his home on Wicomico Creek, Somerset county.

The will, written five years ago, leaves the residue of the $1,250,000 estate to Edna Davy, after certain annuities to employees and former nurses. Ruth Davy, sister of Edna and two years her senior, is to receive $300 a month for life.

The two girls, daughters of a poor Maryland farmer, had resided with Doctor Tull for several years. The father had objected to adoption of the daughters. Edna is to have a good home and complete education and is to receive the inheritance when 25.

The estate includes 1000-acre farm on which Doctor Tull lived, real estate mortgages and various securities. A caveat has been filed to the will by Mrs. Louise Tull Baker, of Baltimore, a sister, and Robert H. Jones, a half-brother, of Fairmount, which seeks to halt administration of the estate. The petition will be heard in the September term of the Circuit Court.

The only recognition of relatives in Doctor Tull's will is an annuity to his mother, who has since died. That will now revert to Edna Davy. Relatives and close friends believe Doctor Tull had executed a more recent will. The only one found to date was written in January, 1922, and placed in a safe-deposit box of the Baltimore Trust company. He also dealt with other banks. The Baltimore Trust is named as trustee to the will.

The caveat filed by Fillmore Lankford, of Princess Anne, on behalf of the sister and half-brother, alleges the deceased leaves no mother, sister or descendant and that the petitioners are next of kin.

Doctor Tull was at one time a noted surgeon and practiced for thirty years in New York City, where he also founded a hospital.

Cobb And Simmons Given Suspensions

Chicago, May 7.—(AP)—President Ben Johnson of the American league today indefinitely suspended Ty Cobb and Al Simmons of the Philadelphia Athletics for their row with Umpire Ormsby over the fairness of Cobb's homerun in Philadelphia last Thursday.

Cobb already is out of the game because of an injured leg sustained in sliding to second base in an exhibition game at Buffalo, yesterday, but Simmons will not be allowed to pursue any more fly balls until Johnson gives the word.

COUNCIL FAIL

had been reported to council that he had fired a charge of the explosive on Chambersburg street, recently, after being warned by Burgess Heiges not to do so. The charge broke a six-inch water main, council was told. The "bump" on the asphalt on York street, near Centre Square, was discussed and council placed the matter of its removal in the hands of the highway committee with power to act. The committee will confer with the local state highway department office before proceeding with the work. Wants Curb Fixed

Edward Shultz, a Hanover street property owner, appeared before council relative to an obstruction in the water table on that street, which has been causing trouble, the laying of a strip of 75 feet of water table and the matter of drainage of surface water which, he claims, runs into his cellar after every hard rain. The three subjects were left with the highway committee to investigate and report to council.

The report of Burgess C. A. Heiges for the month of April follows:

Building permits, $6; digging permits, $44; sewer permits, $2.25; guides' licenses, $11; truck licenses, $25; peddlers' licenses, $25; fines, $15. Total, $128.25.

Councilmen at the meeting were P. C. Stock, president; J. E. Snyder, N. B. Schnurman, John W. McIlhenny, J. Allen Dickson, C. E. Tawney, W. I. Oyler, G. W. Rex and William A. Miller.

NICARAGUAN WAR FINALLY SETTLED

Washington, May 7.—The Nicaraguan war has been guided into peace channels by the United States and is all but over.

Both sides, the Conservative forces under President Adolfo Diaz and the revolutionary Liberals led by Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, are disarming under a truce. The truce remains operative until today, by which time the government forces and the rebels are expected to be completely disarmed.

American marines are drawn between the two armies to receive their weapons.

President Diaz, whose government was recognized by the United States, will remain in power until the 1928 election, which will be supervised by the American government.

A noticeable feeling of relief was evidenced in official quarters here yesterday when this word was received from Henry L. Stimson, former secretary of war and President Coolidge's personal representative, who went to the war-torn Central American Republic commissioned to bring about peace.

Circulation is an evidence of population. The Times does not believe it could possibly have as large a circulation as it has if the population of the community were not larger this year than ever before.

CHRYSLER EXPORT GROWING RAPIDLY

Increased Orders From Foreign Countries Indicate Gain in Prosperity.

Evidence of pronounced improvement in world trade conditions is seen by Chrysler officials in marked gains which their recent export business has been registering over even the high totals it reached in 1926. Chrysler overseas sales during March were the largest in any month of the company's history, it is announced and the first three months of 1927 ran far ahead of any previous Chrysler quarter.

March gains represented an increase of 80.5 per cent over the same month last year, it is stated, while the first quarter of 1927 was 74.1 per cent above the first three months of 1926, which marked a high point in Chrysler exports until the present totals were recorded.

A feature of the export figures, according to the Chrysler officials, is the fact that orders are being received in heavier volume from practically every part of the world, indicating an encouraging revival of prosperity on a widespread basis. The only exception to this condition is found in the few parts of the globe where political disturbances have demoralized industry, while everywhere else the desire and ability of the people to buy American automobiles reflect much improved business and employment conditions.

Chrysler business abroad has never been as good as now, company spokesmen declare. Expansion of the company's export trade last year led to an increase in 1926 export totals over 1925 of approximately 60 per cent, but with the development of overseas sales now manifesting itself confidence is expressed that the gain during 1927 will be even greater.

GOING THROUGH THE MUD

Failure to get through a flooded section of roadway often is due to lack of proper traction which, in turn, is due to lack of weight in the rear of the car. The same applies to getting stuck in the mud. The more weight there is on the rear wheels the less they are likely to spin. When attempting to pass through a bad spot in the road it is worth while to load up the back of the car with rocks and have the other passengers sit back there while you drive.

KEEPING HOOD BRIGHT

Hoods turn dull quicker than any other part of the car because the hood always is hotter than any other section of the body. Over this the car owner can have very little control. But a contributing reason for the dulling of hoods is in reality an oversight on the part of the owner. Hoods need more protection than any other section of the body, and thus should be polished twice to every polishing of the car. Evidently some car owners work on this assumption, but they spoil the idea by making the mistake of polishing the hood when it is hot.

40,000 WASHERS IN HUGE ORDER

Considered One of Largest Business Deals in This Line of Industry.

Official confirmation of a huge business deal in which the Automatic Electric Washer company of Newton, Iowa, has entered in a contract with the Automatic Appliance company, of California, for 40,000 washing machines, was received here today by H. T. Maring, local dealer.

The contract, which ensures distribution of the Newton-made product in northern California, is a fitting accompaniment to the deal closed last December, when the company made arrangements for the handling of the product in carload lots in southern California, when 13,500 machines were ordered for that section of the state.

W. N. Gallagher, vice president and director of sales, in announcing the signing of the order, said that the closing of the deal was particularly gratifying to the company heads in that it carried out the prophecy that the present year would be the greatest year in the history of the company. A favorable reaction to the introduction of the new machine has been experienced and it is the belief of those in touch with conditions that this will be a year of unprecedented production in the washing machine industry in Newton.

Joe A. Woodrow was the salesman responsible for securing the order. After working with the backers of the Automatic Appliance company from the time the firm was first conceived, he has followed it through until the final signing of the huge order.

The Automatic Appliance company is a firm of northern California capitalists who have become interested in the new model 20, manufactured by the company, and seeing the prospects of a huge sale, have organized a sales force which will cover the entire northern part of that state. No definite step was taken, however, until the franchise was obtained.

DODGE PERFECTS NEW MOTORS

Hailed As Most Outstanding Improvement in Company's History by Officials.

Dodge Brothers, Inc., today announces the most outstanding and important improvement in its present line of four-cylinder motor cars since the first Dodge Brothers car was built in 1914. It is a new motor—still rugged and dependable like the former Dodge Brothers engine, but snappier in acceleration, faster and more economical on the open road and more powerful when power is needed. Dodge Brothers' engineers declare that the cars powered with this motor are the best the company has ever built.

So fundamental are the improvements in construction that its acceleration is 20 per cent quicker than that of the old motor. It develops 15 per cent more power. It is 20 per cent more economical in gasoline consumption. It is faster on the road. Everyone who has driven cars powered with the new motor has expressed astonishment at the marked increase in flexibility and in the smoothness of operation throughout the entire range of speed.

The new power plant is fitted with a standard shift transmission which is more rugged in construction and easier and quieter to shift.

The 15 per cent increase in power has been brought about by better carburetion. To insure more complete vaporization of the fuel and easier passage into the cylinders the carburetor and manifolds have been redesigned. A section of the intake manifold above the carburetor is heated by exhaust gases. The shorter travel from the new carburetor to the cylinders and the effect of the heat in vaporizing any liquid fuel which strikes or flows over the heated surface together with a redesigned cylinder head increases the power of the engine 15 per cent.

The faster entry of the gas into the combustion chamber and the more powerful explosion because it is heated by the manifold are responsible for the improvement of 20 per cent in both acceleration and gasoline mileage. Greater speed also results from these fundamental improvements.

HILL CLIMBING HINT

If the engine starts to knock or "ping" when climbing a hill you will get better results by letting off on the gas than by retarding the spark. The car always loses speed when the spark is retarded, but it may be a positive aid to the engine to let off on the gas, for nine drivers out of ten feed too much gas in their eagerness to climb a hill. A test made by an experienced driver showed that, on a certain difficult hill, retarding the spark always meant an eventual shift to second, while by letting off gas the car would in some instances actually gain speed. It is well, however, to try feeding more gas the moment after you have let off enough to stop the "pinging." As the engine gains speed it naturally will take more gas with less complaint. If retarding the spark must be resorted to, however, retard gingerly. Too sudden, or too extreme, retarding will "kill" the engine quicker than anything else.

SAVING THE MOMENTUM

The reason most cars labor in second gear is that the drivers wait too long before shifting. If the shift is made while the car is going reasonably fast, the momentum saved will be of considerable value in speeding up the car in second gear.

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

TEN YEARS AGO

Surprise Party.—A very pleasant birthday party was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Heck, Hanover street, in honor of their eldest daughter, Kathryn's seventh birthday. The decorations were red, white and blue. Those present were Selma Fisel, Dorothy Bushman, Martha Bowers, Dorothy Stine, Mary Shafer, Dorothy Shafer, Marguerite Rogers, Mardelle Tipton, Margie Slaybaugh, Bernice Snyder, Anna Geiselman, Anna Nicholson, Beatrice Grider, Esther Reaser, Ruth Reaser, Helen Reaser, Kathryn Sheads, Helen Haner, Elizabeth Oyler, Lellie Conti, Marian Munshour, Kathryn Heck, Beatrice Heck, Mildred Heck, Verna M. Heck, Miss Verna M. Speese, Mrs. Frank Nicholson, Mrs. D. M. Merdell, Chicago; Mrs. Herman Moll, Pottsville; Mr. and Mrs. John Heck.

First Aid Class.—The First Aid committee of the Gettysburg Red Cross met Monday evening and decided to form a class of not more than twenty-five members, to receive instruction in bandaging, antidotes for poisons, and other similar work. Dr. McCrea Dickson will conduct the class once a week. The expenses of belonging total only 80 cents. No one under sixteen years of age will be admitted, but members may join whether or not they belong to the Red Cross.

For Tea Room.—Miss Fowle and Miss Butterfield, two ladies who have successfully conducted several tea rooms in Bernada, will open one in Gettysburg on Saturday. They have secured the first floor on the E. S. Faber residence on Chambersburg street and have furnished most attractively the front rooms. Furniture and table appointments have been selected with care, and the place will cater to the most desirable class of trade.

Struck by Stone.—Clair Eden, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Eden, of York street, was rendered unconscious when he was hit back of the ear with a large stone, while he was playing with a lot of boys in the rear of the Methodist church Wednesday evening. He is able to be about today.

To Washington to Secure Camp.—William Arch McLean, Esq., and C. A. Williams were named as a committee to represent Gettysburg in its efforts to secure one of the big mobilization camps for men selected in the coming draft.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE FLAME OF ENTHUSIASM

THERE is a God-given flame that burns within the heart of us all. Actually it is hardly more than a tiny pilot flame, hidden and unknown to the outer world. But just let the gunpowder of enthusiasm touch it and it flares into giant proportion. It is at tense moments when great acts brew, that this rising flame does its work. It warms and generates power in the mind, places a steel-like defense behind the wall, and whispers words of encouragement in flood-like formation, till the man or woman does the unusual and grand, and glories in it. No great task ever reached its finest fruition without this flame of enthusiasm mastering the way. But what is behind this mysterious flame that has so changed the world, as well as developed it? First—faith. Something that was placed in the soul when it touched the air of life. Then—desire. Something that is found in every human being—a desire to be bigger, more helpful, and nobler today than yesterday. The adventurer must have it. The inventor must know it as his meat and drink. The builder, the writer, the orator, the artist—each must contrive his own way of lighting this flame and give to it great proportion. Sometimes there are those unable to light the little pilot flame within themselves, but who become the means of lighting it in others. They, too, are great! We do for ourselves when we do for others. The greater the dream, the finer the resolve, the purer the motive, the greater does this flame rise and make bright the world.

FRIENDSHIP

Wealth has a lavish way,
Fame is of the crowd.
Sympathy must have a day
When the head is bowed.
Pride has many things to boast,
Skill and power and place,
Fancying these things uppermost,
Which is not the case.

Friendship asks no special hour
Sorrowful or gay.
Into beauty it will flower
Every passing day.

Wealth and fame and pride depart;
All that ever lives
In the memory and the heart
Is what friendship gives.

Little Jack Rabbit

The pretty robin's vest is red
And brown his feather coat.
He has no shoes upon his feet,
Nor collar 'round his throat,
But he is happy all day long,
And sings so sweet and free
The happy blossoms dance upon
The fragrant apple tree.

Yes, sir, the old apple orchard was all abloom, and among the flowering branches the birds had built many a comfortable little bungalow. Up in the Big Blue Sky Mr. Merry Sun was shining brightly and as the little rabbit hopped along his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw, Buster Bear peeked from behind the Old Chestnut Tree.

"Just give me one lick
On your candy stick."

he begged, for he has a sweet tooth, yes, oh yes.

"If I let you taste the end of my candy can all my friends will want a lick," sighed the bunny boy. "Soon there'd be nothing left but the crooked handle."

"Don't believe it!" laughed the little bear.

"Don't believe what?" asked a voice all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat.

"Who are you?" asked the curious little rabbit, looking here and peering there, gazing 'round 'most everywhere.

"I'm somebody you haven't seen for a week or more; seven long days, but not nearly a score," answered the voice, and the next minute from the meadow grass jumped Daddy Long-legs, the tall insect who seems to be walking on stilts.

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the little rabbit, "I haven't seen you and you've not seen me since we went coasting on your Pushmobile."

"That's right," agreed Daddy Long-legs, re-flec-tive-ly, which means to think between each syllable.

"But where's your Pushmobile?"

end with her grandmother, Mrs. Amanda Lightner.

Ray Sites and sister, Elva, visited their brother, Ivan Sites, and family, Monday evening.

The festival held in the schoolhouse last Saturday evening by the Willing Workers' class of the Mt. Hope United Brethren Sunday School proved a success, clearing enough to pay for the new song books which were recently purchased for the school.

YOUNG WOMEN
MAY KEEP WELL

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Here is Proof

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers." Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company: "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results from its use." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and have had fine results. My condition made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask him, 'How is housekeeping?' and he says, 'It is just like being in heaven!' Are you on the Sunlit Road to Better Health?"

Matinee Ladies

by William B. Courtney

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture-ization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, working his way through college, finds with his chums, Freddy and Arch, an easy way to earn money—working as dancing partners, of afternoons, for rich women in a fashionable New Jersey roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a fit way to make a living; but, to get funds to finish school, goes. At the Inn he sees the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on. She is Sally, the cigarette girl. Reciprocating his interest, she warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitué of the Inn, who asks to meet him.

Mrs. Hammond was positively radiant with interest and admiration as Bob, with his boyish and old-fashioned courtliness, acknowledged Madame Leonine's gushing presentation. An introduction that was deferential—on the Madame's part—to the last degree, and was as elaborate and ritualistic as any presentation at England's Court of St. James could possibly have been. A presentation that was watched, catlike and doglike, by all the ladies and lords, and coquette's and tops, and mistresses and gallants of this gay New Jersey palace of passion and mirth.

A presentation that was watched by Sally, the dainty little lady-in-waiting, from under the yellow silk fringe of her long lashes, with confidence—without fear.

CHAPTER VIII

Bob Ward, however, was feeling far from comfortable and self-assured as, at Mrs. Hammond's delicately expressed suggestion, he sat down at her table to chat a bit with her before the next dance should start. Madame Leonine padded away, through her jungle of tables, to convey to the orchestra leader Mrs. Hammond's preference of a selection for the next number. Life within the roadhouse settled back into its fussy routine, after the agitation caused by the advent of the Queen of Play subsided.

But nearly everyone continued to furiously watch Mrs. Hammond's appraising and testing of her new toy—said to be Bob Ward, the six-foot-two gridiron champ.

Bob—oddly enough in one whose social perceptions, at least where women of sophistication figured, were ordinarily very dense—somehow felt almost immediately this sense of being a toy. Of being a plastic plaything in the supple hands of a surprisingly clever player.

He was uneasy under the glinting directness of her stare—her uncannily mirthless smile. Or was it really a gracious smile—a charming smile? He could not tell, for the life of him. He only knew that he wished himself safely off in a far corner alone with Sally. For here, with Mrs. Hammond's eyes boring into him so, he felt himself slowly dissolving inside, as it were—disintegrating, slipping away from the safe moorings of his clean youth, into the shallow but terribly swift river of this woman's flaming nature. He wished she would quit looking at him so—ravishingly, was it? He was beginning to feel a bit dizzy; a bit carried out of himself. Good Lord, was she trying to hypnotize him?

Was that it? Almost involuntarily, as he mechanically returned monosyllabic answers to her softly insistent questions, he gripped the edges of the table. It was as though he felt this physical precaution necessary to guard him from falling into those deep, dark pools of volcanic eyes. Flaming craters Good Lord, but this woman was magnificent! Beautiful as a finely chiselled masterpiece of statuary; alluring as a tropic night!

Oh, thank Heaven!—there, the music was starting up. Time for the next dance. Then, with that over, he would escape. She would want someone else—especially if he danced and acted as stupidly overawed as he felt. Escape! Yes.

that was the precise word to express it. It would be escape—for now Bob felt himself enmeshed, imprisoned in a miasmatic swamp.

Out upon the floor. The Tigris and the lion. Away into the swirl of the dance. Bob discovered, to his satisfaction, that Mrs. Hammond danced little short of divinely; and that, in surrendering herself to the artistic impulses and rhythms of the cadenced measures, she did not keep up a persistent and idle chattering. Which was a welcome relief from the pathetic clumsiness of some of the dowagers, and the incessant jawing of Masie Revere.

Bob found his mental and spiritual alarms abating in the pleasure of the physical perfection of Mrs. Hammond as a dancing partner. Then, too, he was fortified by the reassuring, approving, subtly radiant smiles which Sally Smith bestowed upon him every time he glanced her way—which was just as often as he could do so without dislocating his neck.

Knightly romances of old have often related how many a queen and princess have benefited through the ardor aroused in their spouses by the memories or thoughts of beggar maids. So, in a way, it was with Bob and Sally and Mrs. Hammond. For once, during the course of the dance, when Bob caught a particularly lovely smile from Sally, it was reflected, quite unconsciously, in a tightening of his arms around the object he held in them; which, according to his climbing thoughts, was Sally Smith; but, in reality, was the graceful form of Mrs. Hammond.

She, gratified at the sudden demonstration of apparent ardor, looked up with quick and tingling surprise into Bob's flushed face. Somehow, he realized what had happened. And as much to hide his embarrassment as to remedy the slip, more an apology than a promise, he smiled into her eyes. There was little else he could do, under the circumstances. But it only served to intensify what had been on his part a pure mistake; it only served to increase Mrs. Hammond's misapprehension that he had quite voluntarily signified a flirtatiously warm interest in her.

She pressed her body closer to his in the enchantment of the dance. She closed her eyes, and gave herself deliciously over to the strong and pleasant guidance of his arms. She did not speak. But she breathed a little harder; colored a little deeper. She was very happy.

Bob, despite an underlying fear of the fact that he had now and then caught flashes of far down in the darkness of her eyes—as one might glimpse ruddy glows when the stoke door of a distant train is swung to and fro at night—felt a superficial thrill that even the safe smile Sally could not banish from his pulses, his limbs.

It was a point of the pride of his masculine youth to respond to the fact that this gorgeous creature, this beautiful and ultra-modern woman of the fashionable world, was evidently "falling" for him.

Let Freddy and Arch kid him now! He could tell them a thing or two.

Anyhow, surely if they were using their eyes, they could see for themselves just how things stood. How Mrs. Hammond, as trustfully as a babe, was allowing herself to be waited around the room in his arms.

Certainly, Bob could not help noting, even what with his pleasure in the sensation of the dance itself and his glances toward the hovering Sally Smith, that many of the dancing couples, and all of the sittees, were admiringly and enviously watching Mrs. Hammond and him.

Madame Leonine, enraptured, stood in a palm bower near the orchestra and rubbed her hands ecstatically. Never had her polished floor been graced before by so outstanding a couple. Added to the avareness of the roadhouse keeper, was a gratification of the showmanship in Madame Leonine, and still something more—an appeal to the latent sense of the beautiful, which, though seemingly incongruous and out of place in such creatures, is nevertheless existent in so many women of the lower realms of the stage and the informal entertainment world.

Freddy and Arch watched, and Freddy managed to whisper to Arch as they swayed close in a hesitating measure of the dance: "How are we going to keep him boning his books, now that he's hugged the Queen?"

Sally watched, and was pridefully sure that it was Bob, her partner, who was showing Mrs. Hammond off to such good advantage. The woman had never looked so wonderful with any other dancer. It was the company, the partner—of course! But Sally would be relieved when Mrs. Hammond would have some other partner.

There, the dance was ending now. Sally was vaguely disturbed by tremors of suspense. Would Mrs. Hammond be so ready to surrender this attractive partner?
